

Mining Careers

Today's world faces complex problems. We all need to work together to manage the Earth's natural resources wisely. More scientists and engineers will be called upon to find the answers we need, especially in the mining industry since it supplies the world's mineral products. There are literally hundreds of careers related to mining. A few are listed below. Careers in mining offer the opportunity for world travel, good income and the opportunity to make a difference. Maybe one of these careers would suit you!

IF YOU...	YOU MIGHT MAKE A GOOD... enjoy gathering, searching and researching	Geologist are a good problem solver	Industrial Designer enjoy gathering, searching and researching like mathematics and physical sciences are good at managing or supervising	Mining Engineer enjoy gathering, searching and researching are good at managing or supervising	Plant Engineer enjoy gathering, searching and researching are good at managing or supervising like to work with plants and the environment like to work with animals	Environmental Engineer like to work with plants and the environment like to work with animals are good at managing or supervising	Wildlife Manager like to work with people are good at communicating	Public Relations and Marketing Professional enjoy gathering, searching and researching like to work with computers	Data Processing Specialist like working with tools and instruments like working with equipment, driving vehicles	Miner like working with tools and instruments	Plant Worker

To learn more about minerals and mining visit www.MineralsEducationCoalition.org.

12999 E. Adam Aircraft Circle
 Englewood, CO 80112
 303-948-4200

Courtesy of Caterpillar Inc.